Promoting gender equality at work. Gender inequality in the workplace might include hiring or training only one gender for a particular role (perhaps because it's seen as "men's work" or "women's work"). Female employees may also worry about treatment during pregnancy or motherhood, or being sexually harassed. Unequal pay: As we mention above in gender pay reporting, this is one of the most pressing examples of sexism in the workplace. You now must follow government guidelines regarding this matter. Redundancies: Terminating a female employee for making a claim of unequal treatment at work. Bias: Showing preferential treatment towards male colleagues over female ones, such as in promotions or day-to-day conversation. Unequal Britain at Work.
