In his 31st work, esteemed sociologist Drucker follows his last major management work, Post-Capitalist Society (LJ 2/15/93), with his ideas on how the concept of management is changing, focusing on the major critical issues, problems, practices, and strategies management faces in the new century. Instead of offering a futurist set of predictions, Drucker discusses major challenges facing management that are already manifest in today's rapidly changing world. Beyond the inevitable pressures on resources, rapid population growth in the poorest parts of the world in the next several decades will lead to growing imbalances and a broad range of challenges for governments, businesses, and civil society. For instance, in the Middle East and North Africa, high fertility rates and the highest rates of population growth in the world will put an enormous strain on labor markets. PETER F. DRUCKER (1999): THE MANAGEMENT CHALLENGE FOR THE 21ST CENTURY (BOOK REVIEW) AND CRITICAL ARGUMENT OF DRUCKER'S IDEA FROM POSTMODERNISM PERSPECTIVE BY: Tarekegn Tamiru Woldesenbet. November 2018. Soundview Executive Book Summaries 2. Management Challenges for the 21st Century SUMMARY. Strategy: The New Certainties. The most important single new certainty is the collapsing birthrate in the developed world. In most parts of the developed world, manual labor is becoming a smaller and smaller part of total costs. So while low labor productivity may endanger a company's survival, low labor costs don't necessarily deliver a cost advantage if productivity is low. You and your company can benefit tremendously if you learn how to exploit today's growth industries.
